Letter of Invitation

To His Excellency Senator Renan Calheiros
President of the Brazilian Federal Senate

April 16, 2013

Dear Senator Renan Calheiros,

The Eastern Economic Association, in collaboration with the North American Basic Income Guarantee association, hosts an annual conference every year. This year our conference will be held in New York City from May 8 to May 11. The association invites scholars from all around the world to discuss pertinent economic concepts to a sophisticated audience of scholars and practitioners. As such, we are inviting Senator Eduardo Suplicy to speak at our conference, both to represent the Senate of Brazil, and most importantly to act as an ambassador for the wonderful citizens of your country. Senator Suplicy is one of the world's leading experts on basic income and would provide a wonderful benefit to conference participants.

In addition to speaking at the conference, we have invited Senator Suplicy to also speak to students at Ramapo College of New Jersey, the academic headquarters of the Eastern Economic Association and New Jersey's public liberal arts college located just outside New York City. As part of its four pillars, the college seeks to expose our students to international dialogue and Senator Suplicy would be most welcomed by our students. The senator would be the forth speaker in the EEA headquarters series, following Nobel Laureates Paul Krugman and Joseph Stigitz, and internationally renowned environmental economist Yoram Bauman.

Further information on our program can be found on our website (www.ramapo.edu/eea). Should you have any questions, please let me know. B

Best regards,

Alexandre Olbrecht, Executive Director, EEA
